

U.S. Detective Gives Evidence In Oakes Case

De Marigny declared he had not been upstairs for three years.

Barker has testified that a finger impression on De Marigny's little right finger, "The defense has stated a long and attack which deserves to show that De Marigny might have had an opportunity after the crime to touch that finger."

De Marigny readily agreed. Melchion declared, to submit to an examination.

WORE A MUSTACHE

De Marigny wore a mustache and a Van Dyke beard at the time of his arrest July 9. Recently, with the permission of his lawyer, he shaved off the beard.

"We asked the accused how he would shave his beard," the officer said. "He replied, 'Maybe lighting cigarettes.'

He asked whether this would affect the forearm.

"Hardly," he replied.

"He then said maybe he would shave his beard at the time of his arrest," the officer said. "He may have burned my arm," said he, lighting one of the Hurricane lamps on the house, moving his arm over to the chimney to show how it might have happened.

Previous witness had told of seeing De Marigny lighting lamps during the July 7 dinner party.

He asked him for the shirt and tie he wore the night before, said Melchion. The shirt could not be found after a search, the officer continued.

MADE THREAT

Dr. William Yohanan, Sayad, Palm Beach, Fla., eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, told the court that the threat he heard was "I will kick to 'crook the toe' of Sir Harry."

The physician said Sir Harry's elder daughter, entered Good Samaritan hospital at West Palm Beach, last spring for an operation, and found De Marigny in the room. He came to the hospital for the removal of his tonsils.

Under questioning, he said Sir Harry De Marigny moved from the room and canceled his plans for the operation. Dr. Sayad then left.

"I will crook Sir Harry's toe," he quoted the defendant.

"I admonished him," Dr. Sayad said, and told him he should make such remarks about his father-in-law."

De Marigny testified that the remark "was made in a spirit of fun," and Sir Harry told De Marigny "I will kick to 'crook the toe' of Sir Harry," said defense counsel George H. Hagan on cross-examination.

"Sir Harry told him to get out of the room and to Namey's at the hospital or he would kick him out."

NANCY UPSET

Dr. Sayad said that Nancy was upset by the clash between her father and De Marigny, and said she did not want to see them.

As Dr. Sayad left the court, De Marigny was taken from his dock for a visit to the hospital for an operation. The two men met at the dock, and De Marigny patted the physician on the back. They shook hands.

Nancy unable to enter the courtroom because she was testifying later in the afternoon, was taken to a long telephone conversation with her mother, Lady Oakes.

The widow arrived from the United States Saturday morning. Nancy, against her son-in-law, Nancy was at the airport to meet her, but Lady Oakes was not there. She does without knowing that her son-in-law was in the waiting room.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 23. (UPI)—John Campbell, Douglas, solicitor for the defense, and Alfred de Marigny during the investigation of the slaying of Sir Harry Oakes, quoted the accused man yesterday as commenting on the wealth of his lawer-in-law: "Should have been killed, anyhow."

De Marigny, an attorney-at-law, told a Bahamas Supreme court jury of a conversation with De Marigny the day before the killing. The accused man's burned body was discovered in a basement of his country estate.

Douglas said De Marigny described his strained relation with his father-in-law, and blamed the slaying on the son-in-law. Ruth, "Ruth caused the relations," he quoted De Marigny as saying.

The conversation, Douglas continued, took place during an automobile drive July 9 from De Marigny's chicken farm to Westmoreland.

Minor Plane Loss

Over N. Atlantic

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(CP)—The percentage loss of aircraft in the North Atlantic during the month was less than one-half of one per cent, for the year ending Sept. 30, the Royal Canadian Air Force said yesterday. The figures, its report said, include east-west and west-east flights.

The defense force said the report said.

For

by

Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky

The trouncing visited upon the Japanese on Wake Island by combined surface and aerial naval forces on October 5 and 6 represents a magnificent victory of which Americans have every reason to be proud. Wake Island is a fighting reminder to us and this successful foray goes a long way toward settling an old and tough score.

But it is always unwise to claim victory in any military action. The fine performance at Wake Island may boomerang against us if we allow ourselves to exaggerate its importance or misread its lesson.

The main facts are clearly established in the navy communiqué and eye-witness accounts. A power, de Seversky

Allied Bombers Blast Europe From Two Sides

By ROBERT STURDEVANT

London, Oct. 25—(AP)—Allied bombers still based in France and southern France, Austria and Hungary yesterday new forces were prepared for bombing operations, perhaps to Berlin, beyond.

Two-engined, extra-long-range American fighters, returning to a surprise attack on Wake. It effectively neutralized the difference in strength on the ground and in the air. Assault by American long-range bombers, which previously had been forced to American bases, attacking Berlin.

HIT FIGHTER BASES

Nazi fighter bases at Beauvais, Noyelles, St. Omer, and Le Touquet, and British bases at Duxford and Biggin Hill, were all destroyed by the medium bombers without loss of a single craft, an American general manager, and possibly the senior high appointment of that organization.

Mr. King will soon receive a report from the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcast Commission for a summer to Dr. James S. Thomson as corporation general manager, and possibly the senior high appointment of that organization.

ELEVEN SENATE SEATS

There are 11 Senate vacancies in the past it has been customary for the Senate to defer to attempt to fill at least some of the vacancies before each session of parliament. The next session will be in December.

Mr. King and his cabinet meetings met frequently last week in council and in war committee.

The most important announcement—that of the new proposal for a two-year bacon and ham agreement with the United States, providing a total of not less than 900,000,000 pounds of pork products to Britain in 1944.

It is believed the government was occupied last week—and probably throughout the month—on this week—with labor policy.

Mr. King and his colleagues have for weeks been studying the report of the National War Council's survey of labor conditions, and they have been reported to be considering a new and far-reaching policy, including compulsory bargaining and family allowances.

Meanwhile, up from the Mediterranean came Allied four-engined bombers to bomb the Austria area and Styria district of Austria, the German radio said, and later more big formations to bomb the western border to bomb Trans-Danubia.

GRUB, GRUB

Cattle grub, according to estimates, spoil enough leather annual to fit the United States to the shoes of nearly 31,000,000 men.

Land-based aviation would have a chance to cast part at all in the fighting. However, once we have the bombers based out of our land bases, there would be no sense in bringing air power by carriers.

Major de Seversky's article appears exclusively in The Bulletin three times weekly.

Reprinted by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

SURPRISE CHARACTER

The chief fact that needs understanding is that the surprise of what happened is the surprise character of the undertaking. Commander John D. Hayward, who led the raid, later admitted that the story he said to the correspondents "There was no air opposition. Some of the planes destroyed on the ground, it looked to me like the base had been completely destroyed by previous bombing and shelling attacks."

Now the element of surprise always detracts the relationship between the aggressor and the enemy completely off guard or asleep, you can inflict heavy damage to the enemy by surprise bombing and shelling attacks.

As proof of the efficacy of the weapons or the tactical techniques, such an attack is largely worthless.

MERELY REPETITION

Our assault on Wake Island is merely a repetition of Pearl Harbor, with the same result. The certainty of one correspondent, apparently quoting naval officers, wrote that "the Wake action demonstrated that the Japanese were not so different from Japan's two years earlier. We should ask ourselves whether the same mistake would not have worked if we had applied them to an enemy territory well prepared and thoroughly on the alert."

The truth of that is dangerous nonsense. The action demonstrated only that the Japs on the morning of Dec. 7, like the Americans on the morning of December 7, were caught entirely off guard. The American "lesson" was no different than Japan's two years earlier. We should ask ourselves whether the same mistake would not have worked if we had applied them to an enemy territory well prepared and thoroughly on the alert.

The writer in the writer's opinion, is definitely in the minority. Had he been on the job, and had Wake possessed adequate land-based aviation, the approaching American naval force would have interdicted landing long before they came with shelling and bombing distance of the island—as in the case of the Japs when we intercepted a Japanese naval surface and carrier armada.

The writer's article brought to the scene by carriers would in that case have been largely absorbed by the job of driving the carriers and the task force, and little if anything to spare for other purposes.

As Winston Churchill rightly pointed out, the Japanese at the Salween battle, carriers that venture outside the protection of friendly land-based aviation, in the face of strong opposing land-based aviation, must use their entire air complement for self-defense.

EMEMY UNPREPARED

The fact that destroyers and cruisers were able to approach within 10 miles of Wake Island unopposed is a clear sign that the Japanese gunners, that their aerial forces were incapable of appreciating the situation. The Japs had good reason to be surprised. Being within bombing range of the island, and having received a taste of thorough devastation by our land-based army forces seven times over, the Japs could hardly expect that a less effective and riskier type of raid would be brought to bear against them. From this angle, our naval commanders deserve credit for brilliantly utilizing this situation.

Incidentally, it is only proper to suppose that the repeated direct air raids visits had a lot to do with the weakened state of the island's defenses.

The Wake episode will, I hope, give some people as "proof" that direct attack on Japan by carrier-borne aviation is a practical possibility, and those who indulge in such ideas are guilty of highhanded chauvinism.

ADES'S SHIELD

Combined forces similar to those that pummeled Wake, if used against a well defended objective like Japan, would be doomed to destruction by the enemy's heavy land-based bombers even before they entered the main Japanese waters. Only they are adequately shielded by our own

Expect Premier Soon to Make Appointments

OTTAWA, Oct. 25—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King, faced by a growing list of appointments to high places in the judiciary, the government service and the Senate, is expected to make a fairly clean sweep of them at his next cabinet meeting.

There are five important judicial vacancies, two in Quebec and one each in Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Ontario and Quebec. It has been reported that the present transport minister, J. E. Michael, was slated for the New Brunswick seat. Mr. King will soon receive a report from the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcast Commission for a summer to Dr. James S. Thomson as corporation general manager, and possibly the senior high appointment of that organization.

Thrift

The word is strange to the ears of the younger generation in Canada. Perhaps because it was abused in an earlier day and made to indicate a miserly disposition and meanness in money matters. But that is not the meaning of the term, and it is not to be attributed to our vocabulary in its proper significance.

Thrift is nothing more than a common sense regard for one's own future. It implies living within one's means in order to save something for use in the days to come. It is not necessary that each person be thrifty; it is the self-dependent should covet for himself or herself.

No word better expresses the idea that everyone who can at all do so should buy a Victory Bond or more than one, for his or her own sake. Ignoring for the moment the duty of helping to finance the war, the bonds now on offer for sale offer to persons of all ages and both sexes an opportunity to each to do something for him- self and herself.

The money thus invested will be safe, it will draw interest, and it will be recoverable when the bond maturities or by sale before the time of maturity. The man in the kitchen, at the door, or even Canadian who hopes to live better in the future than he was able to live in the past, or who even wants to protect himself against ill-fortune that may come to men and women of all ranks and in every country.

Those who exercise thrift today will draw dividends of security and better living in the years which follow.

A Call to the Old Guard?

Since he says he no longer has any political aspirations, ex-premier Meighen is free to start his political career again as a private citizen. But as Mr. Meighen engineered, or helped engineer, the selection of Mr. Bracken as leader of the re-christened Conservative party, his views naturally arouse interest beyond that attaching to the statements of men who have no political aims for party platforms, creeds and ideas.

Protege-Bracken will certainly not thank god-father Meighen for the broadside he delivered at Vancouver against the idea of state action in shaping the conditions of post-war reconstruction. His plans, Mr. Meighen is reported as saying, cannot possibly assist in bringing order out of chaos in the readjustment days. "This thing of making work for people for the sake of making them work to eliminate unemployment is a delusion. The usual thing we read, that society will no longer tolerate unemployment, is as vain and as senseless as saying society will no longer tolerate disease."

This reassertion in typical Meighen style of the basic Tory doctrine of state help to the individual is almost as being untimely to the point of being a farce, because no one has been preaching state responsibility for employment any more frequently than the new leader of the party. Mr. Meighen formerly led. It sounds very much like a call to the Old Guard to get back to first principles and have nothing to do with the "delusion" of Mr. Bracken.

As for the doctrine which the ex-leader so emphatically re-states, it need only be pointed out that the choice of a simile was unfortunate. Society does not catch disease, but fights it. And, whatever Mr. Meighen and the Old Guard may think about it, society is going to fight unemployment. Those who think the contrary are the real victims of delusion.

We'll Need Markets

Canadian manufacturers are looking at the realities which lie ahead, and have asked the federal Government that they be allowed to send "toboggan" shipments of their surplus products abroad during wartime, and in that way secure a home customer for the after-war years. This is sound policy for the country as well as for the manufacturers, in so far as the production can be based on without weakening the strength of war industries, and as shipping can be spared for the purpose.

No country has undergone such a sweeping change in its permanent economic set-up as has the Dominion under the impact of war conditions. In four years Canada has increased its war production by 100 per cent. and the war effort has had to be maintained in the preceding twenty. The new plants and expanded and modernized plants which are now turning out weapons and explosives, and a hundred other needs of our own, and the heavy fighting forces have a potential peacetime production capacity out of all relation to the manufacture output of pre-war years.

This capacity cannot be turned to account in the post-war years, and so far as things the plants can turn out when peace returns. Directly this is a matter of vital importance to hundreds of thousands of people who have invested their savings in new plants, and to the other hundreds of thousands of men now working in the factories. But it is a matter of as real concern to the nation at large, because in a score of ways busy factories help to create prosperity for people all over the world.

Because it has grown to such vast dimensions, a partial paralysis of our industrial organism in post-war years would spread unemployment and stagnation more widely than it did or could in times past. So far as it is possible without hurting the efforts of our manufacturers, they should therefore be encouraged and helped to keep their peacetime products on display now wherever there is a reasonable prospect that they can work up business for the time when war orders will no longer keep their wheels turning and their employees drawing wages.

Allied bombers got help they perhaps did not expect when they raided Weimar for the third time in an eight day period. Some of the bombs hit a munition dump, exploded and wrecked the enemy base entirely. Incidentally, the raiders shot down enough Jap planes to bring the score to 500 of those destroyed since the systematic attack on the place was undertaken weeks ago. New Guinea is one island outpost that is costing the Japs more than it is worth.

V.

Buchanan has appeared in the news again. And has again been bombed off the map as an important munitions producing center. The time has been spent in getting the plants back into production, it is thus wasted, and the repair gangs must now start the job all over. Aside from the material results, this repair-restoration must be particularly depressing. It is a time when made necessary at enough expense to exert considerable influence on the morale of both the repairmen and the residents.

V.

In his blitzkrieging days Herr Hitler used to tell his soldiers they would never have to win the war if they would never be in a position of that super-armed that would smash through everything to quick victory. That is another intuition which went wrong. On the eastern front and in Italy his commanders have now no other hope in mind than to set up defense lines in the rear, and to wait for a second front in Western Europe.

Third, the highly vital fact that Russia now holds the balance of power in Europe is.

The Saturday Night Review

Summary of Broadcast Delivered Over CFRN Oct. 23

By HAROLD L. WEIR

The peace of the world may be decided within the next fifty years. That may sound like a tall statement, but when one examines the extent of the war, the peace is decided.

It is the war that is decided.

Sports Events
Not to Interfere
Is Army Policy

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—(CP)—The Army Saturday reiterated the policy that participating sports events—though still necessary even though not enough encouragement—will not be allowed to interfere with normal training and duties of individual soldiers.

"Hockey players in the Canadian Army are primarily soldiers and they will receive the same treatment as all other soldiers. The discipline of all other army personnel," the defence department said, "means that the ruling applies also to other sports."

"If a player is called for general service, and is up to the standards for overseas service, he will be considered in the making of his training to be discontinued."

The statement did not mention any specific player or any specific incident. A defense department spokesman said it was kept in "general terms" to keep the department from being accused of being too lenient.

Actually, he said, the new statement—issued after consultations here among high army authorities—made no change in the previous policy of papering over the cracks.

But this source said it was "pretty obvious" that in the past there have been many variations from established policy on sport matters. The new statement was an indication, he added, that the army is going to enforce to the letter its policy of "solder first, athlete second."

Orphanage Burns

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—(CP)—Some 150 orphans ranging from three to 10 years of age were evacuated when a fireburned down their home in a wing dormitory of St. Joseph's orphanage, on L'Orignal Ridge, a suburb of Ottawa.

Twenty-eight children of the Firemen carried two sisters and two young boys down ladders from the third floor.

Anticlimax Wins
Washington Race

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25.—(AP)—

Anticlimax carried the navy blue and white silks of Hal Price Headley to a surprise victory in the $17,000 Washington Handicap at Pimlico Saturday.

The four-year-old gelding, a 10-to-1 shot in the wagering, led a field of six throughout the entire mile and a half to win a 2 1/2 length victory.

Son of Peace, from the Calumet Farm Stables of Warren Wright, was second, and the Shad Oul.

Anticlimax carried 100 pounds, including Jockey Nick Jenkins, compared with 93 for the first three victors in 20 starts this year, and boosted his earnings for the year to $4,485.

The winner paid $40.90, $9.00 and $5.00 for $2. Son of Peace paid $3.00 and $2.00 and the show price on Shut Out was $2.40.

O.C. Standings Shaken

Chelsea Gains Leadership Of South English Soccer

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(CP Cable)—For a long time the "joke" team of British soccer, Chelsea, jumped into leadership of the English Southern League by beating Crystal Palace 2-1 Saturday in one of a series of matches that shook up the standings in nearly all divisions, including the northern where Aston Villa took over sole possession of first place with a 3-1 triumph over West Bromwich.

E.A.C. Meeting
Tuesday Night

A general meeting of the Edmonton Athletic Club will be held at the Royal George hotel on Tuesday evening, October 26, at 8:30 p.m. All attendees are asked to make arrangements for the ensuing hockey season to be completed at the meeting.

The fullness of the Chelsea team has in other years been the basis of much local jokes but now it has become one of the few undefeated clubs in all Britain this season.

At the same time, West Ham and Queen's Park Rangers by a single point. Reading, last week's leaders, fell from first place by losing 1-0 to West Ham.

Other Southern League games saw Arsenal defeating Watford 4-2, Huddersfield losing to Cheltenham 1-0, and Brighton down Queen's Park Rangers 3-1 for Rangers' first defeat of the season.

Aston Villa, early before the biggest crowd of the day—18,000—shot them from third place to the top of the Northern League standings.

Manager Wally Harkness led Liverpool to a 4-3 defeat of Liverpool's own guard.

Sunday saw a 1-1 draw with Bradford. Nottingham Forest defeated Derby 4-2 and Blackpool eked out a 2-1 victory over Bolton in another Northern League game.

In the Western League the leaders maintained their pace with Bath City defeating Luton Athleti 2-1 and Cardiff City whipping Swansea 5-0.

Dumbarton, sharing leadership of the Southern Scottish League with Hibernian, secured their 10th triumph over Albian Rovers while Hibernian whitewashed Dundee 4-0.

Others fell farther behind in the race for the championship as they were held to a 1-1 tie by Morton.

Morton, who took possession of the Scottish Northern League leadership by downing Dundee 2-0.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Commissioner Landis' recent announcement that major league clubs would train in the north again next spring struck us as a premature soft-soap pronouncement from an apologist who wished to assure Washington that baseball would be painless, as possible to a war-concentrated nation, if permitted to continue.

Was this premature? announcement necessary? Didn't baseball have to do this same kind of thing? Didn't Landis have waited until the December league meetings, the least, when the situation was more or less clear? Didn't the club owners and representatives of any Washington department concerned?

Is major league baseball a problem that has to be solved through the war power? Our understandings of the national pastime are not available since the boys in uniform are not available since the home-front "fighters"—the defense workers, the people who are working at the front, the war workers.

WOULD CARRY ON

If this is not true—if major league baseball has no part in the war effort, then why not abolish it for the duration? What would be the effect of such a move? In an apologist fashion? There should be nothing sub rosa about this proposal. If it is not a black market of entertainment?

In some quarters Landis' premature announcement was hailed as the robust indication that the 75-year-old "big game" of baseball would carry on next season. Bologna. Baseball, like any other non-war-time enterprise, is not a good business if it has to make a living after it has been drafted. Every club owner knows that. It wasn't necessary.

MAKING APOLOGIES

You have no such apologies coming from the men who have charge of racing, for example—a man who is racing in a ridiculous figure of the military, a sport that is shipping its hundreds of hours about the country—north and south.

But baseball, the national pastime—a sport that was off 13 percent in attendance during the '42 season—has made a greater contribution to the welfare of the country than any other sport.

Personally, we do not care where the major league clubs train. But we can not stomach the service attitude of the baseball mouthpiece. If he thinks that the bottling of Washington brass is a good idea, let him make a speech on the future of the sport during the war. We suggest (1) he discontinue baseball; or (2) get out of baseball.

"What's holding
brother?"

THE fellows who are in there pitching at the Axis didn't need any formal invitation to race into this scrap... and they're beginning to wonder what happened to you. Those fellows are in the thick of things... smooth-working teams of fighters... each man doing his part.

Besides real he-man action and adventure, you'll get skilled technical training and experience that employers will rate highly after the war.

If you really want to pull your fair share, and if you're fit, there's not a thing in the world to hold you back. You can go aircrave today. You can win your wings in a few short months under the guidance of veteran airmen. What about it, brother?

$16,000,000 Public Works Program Proposed for City

Many Projects Planned To Provide Employment For Returning Veterans

Edmonton's city council is preparing to say it with jobs to returning veterans, instead of "kind words and the dole". A $16,000,000 public works program for the post-war period has been prepared by the city council, which will be submitted to members of the city council on Monday night for tentative approval before being submitted to the provincial government for post-war reconstruction committee.

Edmonton Airman Is Killed in Action

Flt. Sgt. Arthur A. McLaren, former Bulletin and only son of Mrs. E. G. McLaren, 9941 998 street, who has been reported killed on active service overseas.

SCHOOL EXTENSION

In addition to the program suggested by the school commissioners it is probable that the school board will submit a proposal to the city commissioners which it is understood by the commissioners are badly needed.

The commissioners, their reports said that previous post-war reconstruction committee has asked them to submit a program of their own which might be undertaken if and when required.

A former member of the Edmonton Bulletin, Flt. Sgt. McLaren, was born in Lethbridge, where he received his early education. He attended Garrison High and McDougall commercial schools here.

Actively interested in sports he was a member of the local golf club, Jackson's Gym and the Y.M.C.A. He played hockey in the city and was also a former member of the South Side swim club.

He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in November, 1942, and received his basic training in Edmonton.

After further training at Galt and Paulson, Man., he will return to Edmonton Wednesday morning.

Besides his mother, he is surrounded by a wife, Annie, at home

CHAPTER XVI
PAT sat huddled in his easy chair with so weary a start reached Wiesbaden in plenty of time to visit the library there before closing hour. There the Simon's translation of the Eddas and Imhof set to work. He started through the page by page, scratching every word with an eraser. Suddenly he nudged Pat, who, seated beside him, was tentatively pretending to work, through the minutes stamping 49. Inclining them as if someone had doffed, was drawn in ink and the page reference corrected.

"Q-40—Enrell's number," said Imhof, and Pat wanted to shout. Page 40 showed that the page he was working on was the title of a cued work was underlined in ink and the page reference corrected. The page was torn out for this book.

As soon as he received it, he turned to the page given in. He tried the page originally referred to. Nothing. He went back and started through the page again, with great apprehension. If something went wrong, he'd be hanged.

One page more. He turned the leaf, bracing himself. But there, beside the capital Q above the few words, "the author, who was written in ink XIXL and below, one of the names was written in ink. Getting out this book, he turned Imhof found scattered through it, in ink, a number of figures, which he had done, or so, for the author. The figures were usually higher numbers, mostly of three digits, whereas the others were two digits or less.

Accompanying the last fraction came the now familiar notes of music, E D D A, and the name of another German trans-

There is a widespread and repeated belief among lay people that cancer is contagious, and that people in certain localities are infected one way or another. However, medical experts say there is not the slightest evidence of such a thing—cancer is not contagious. Nurses, who handle countless cases of it do not become infected by merely touching the same patient. Any intense irritation may become cancerous if neglected, and it does not matter whether that irritation has ever been near a cancer patient. All tumors and sores which do not heal readily should be examined and treated by competent medical doctors at once.

Collapse PossibleReich's Home Front Crisis
Growing Despite Gestapo

By JOHN COLBURN

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Germany's home front crisis apparently is growing despite the severe measures of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler.

The tone of the German press has taken a pessimistic tinge in the last week. Two conferences of Nazi party and military leaders in Berlin indicate a stirring of events behind the facade of German censorship.

Reports of imminent collapse, however, still must be viewed with reserve.

Doctor Jenny, a prominent Swiss journalist writing in the Bader National Zeitung, said in an interview: "The Hitler and his men only prolong the war, but, despite the Gestapo terror, there is a stirring of events which is not to be expected."

It is considered possible that Germany shall break within a few weeks, but German people have reached a dead point."

Voice Records Of Air Attacks To Aid Allies

EDMONTON, Oct. 25 (CP)—The voices of men who did their duty and their wives, who are still there, had to live with their last breaths, will be coming back in shoe-box size compact discs as the bombers return over Europe.

The box carries spools of magnetized wire, thin strands, each thousands of feet long, and each one carries the voices of more than an hour's conversation.

These wire sound records are one of the newest developments of warfare.

MILITARY PURPOSE

Their purpose is strictly military. A wire recording of that goes in a battleship and such ships have been widely used already in some operations—fills in many missing gaps about what went wrong and what went right. The recordings are to be overcome in the next night's fight.

Wire records return from missions, they are tired, nerve-strained, sometimes jumpy, sometimes nervous, and are given a welcome in a boat.

Intelligence officers immediately question the living, but men can't fight their way through flak bursts and force themselves to return to look for enemy gun positions on the next trip, and drop a few bombs for good luck.

REPORT FROM THE FRONT

Crew members report the positions of incoming enemy fighters. From their conversations intelligence officers can piece together a jigsaw puzzle of fighter tactics and condition is good.

What's on the Air
